The Mapleton Item.

VOL. XIX. MAPLETON DEPOT, PA., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27, 1907. NO. 2

Remarkable Life of Dr. Turner.

Graduate of University of Pennsylvania Lived as a Hermit in Fulton County.

Was Born in Trough Creek.

The short article on the remarkable life of Dr. Turner that appeared in last week's ITEM is supplemented by the following dispatch to the Harrisburg Telegraph of March 18. It will be remembered that the deceased was a full cousin of A. W. and H. H. Swope and born on the farm now occupied by Mr. W. M. Swope.

"In a shanty in Plum Hollow, on the road leading from Fort Littleton to Clear Ridge, two boys, Charles and Edgar Fleming, found the lifeless body of Dr. James Turner, known as the hermit of Plum Hollow.

"Dr. Turner was well known in Harrisburg where years ago during his early tramping experiences he used to occasionally sell herbs and cough medicines, making periodical visits spring and fall.

"Five years ago Turner appeared in Dublin township, apparently a tramp. He decided to give up the life of the knight of the road and obtained permission from George Wilds to occupy a little saw mill shanty. He was quiet, inoffensive and little inclined to talk. When people came to know Turner's condition they began to manifest sympathy for him and many acts of kindness were shown him. It was known he was ill with a severe cold and the boys in passing thought they would make inquiry as to his condition. They hastened to Fort Littleton and gave out the information about his death. In a short time a number of citizens—both of Fort Littleton and Clear Ridge—assembled at the hermit's home The remains were taken to the undertaking establishment of N. B. Henry at Clear Ridge.

"The body was prepared for burial with the same care as would have been bestowed on the best citizen in the county—a nice casket was furnished and last Friday his remains were laid to rest in the Methodist Episcopal church at Clear Ridge, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. Harry Daniels, of Hustontown. In preparing the body for burial $68.54 was found sewed in the lining of his vest, and in little bags secreted in his pockets.

"From a diploma which was seen by some of the neighbors he was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania—both in medicine and dental surgery. In conversation some time ago he said his diploma and other papers including a story of his life, were in a tin box. He had hidden the box in a hollow log not far from the shanty, but fearing it might be disturbed by some chance hunter chopping into the log for a rabbit he had taken the box out of the log and buried it on the hillside. It is suspected by some persons that when the box is found it will contain a large sum of money.

"From the best information obtainable he was born near Cassville, Huntingdon County, and he possessed an interest in a two hundred acre farm, His stepmother resides in Kansas aged 83. The doctors age at the time of his death was about 73. In his early life he is said to have been a school teacher. Those who know him best say that he possessed more than ordinary intelligence. There is, perhaps, a chapter in the old mans's history that is not known to his Dublin township neighbors or he would hardly have chosen the seclusion in which he spent the last years of his life."

Knights Templar Encampment.

The Grand Encampment, Knights Templar of the United States, will be held at Saratoga, June 7-15. The Saratoga conclave promises to eclipse anything before attempted along this line. One of the most novel and unique electrical displays is planned to be given at Hilton Park each evening. It will be an electric light display on the clouds. Clouds will be manufactured and then large lights casting their lights on the clouds with calcium effects, will make a picture. This is one of the many novel features that are planned.

Hot Weather Record Established.

Friday and Saturday Warmer Than March Was Ever Known in This Neighborhood.

Mercury Hovered at 90°.

Coats off. Get out your fan. It was all in order during the last week. The thermometer registered 82°, 84° and up towards 90° at different places about town. The air was damp and sultry. All records of March heat have been broken.

The fact is that last week was warmer than any other corresponding time since the establishment of the local United States weather bureaus. That represents a stretch of over 30 years, and for all any one knows there never was as warm a day as Saturday. The only other time it was anything like as tropical on March 22 and 23 in this neighborhood was in 1904.

CRISIS IN THAW TRIAL—JEROME CALLS HIM INSANE

Climax Precipitated When Defense Introduced Dr. Hamilton.

ATTACK ON PRISONER'S COUNSEL

District Attorney Says They Knew Their Client Was Not Sane—States He Does Not Want an Insane Man Sent to Chair.

New York City.—After a startling climax in the most sensational criminal trial of modern times, Harry K. Thaw, on trial for the murder of Stanford White, was brought face to face with the imminent peril of imprisonment in the State Aslyum for the Criminal Insane in Matteawan rather than danger of death in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

Not since the trial was begun nine weeks ago in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court had here been a court session filled with so many surprises, and, when court finally was adjourned, the general opinion of those in the courtroom was that within a fortnight Thaw would be on his way to New York's Asylum for the Criminal Insane.

As the direct result of a surprisingly audacious move of the defense, in calling to the witness stand Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton in the hope of strengthening a jeopardized case, District Attorney Jerome was given gratuitously the opportunity for which he has watched since the trial began. He seized it and laid before the Court facts looking to the appointment of a commission to determine the present mental state of the defendant.

The prop Thaw's counsel sought to insert beneath a tottering defense was converted by Mr. Jerome into a weapon against it.

In an impassioned address, during which his voice at times vibrated with deep emotion, the District Attorney, after the jurymen had retired at the Court's behest, asserted the profound belief that Thaw's counsel, by the deliberate suppression of evidence of hereditary taint of insanity in the defendant's family, had forced the Court and the prosecuting attorney into the anomalous attitude of placing on trial for his life a man who was and who still is the victim of a progressive and practically hopeless type of insanity, and who is at the present moment incapable of properly deliberating with his counsel upon an issue that concerns his life.

Mr. Jerome almost from the beginning of the trial has been convinced that Thaw is a paranoiac. The depositions made before him and Mr. Hartridge privately by Dr. Bingaman and Dr. Deeman some weeks ago, giving direct evidence of four cases of pronounced insanity, some of them epileptic in character, among Harry Thaw's immediate blood relatives, tended strongly to confirm the District Attorney's belief. It was this he had in mind when he repeatedly told the Court he hoped to be able to escape the necessity of opening the sluice gates to the flood of fetid scandal that subsequently was loosed with the testimony of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

Though it was District Attorney Jerome who brought about the conditions that made the appointment of the Lunacy Commission stand out as the logical outcome, the purpose of the District Attorney would have remained far from being accomplished if it had not been for John B. Gleason, one of Thaw's lawyers. Gleason insisted on flinging himself into the foreground of the proceedings, and the result was that Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, called as an alienist for the defense, asserted pointblank that in his opinion Thaw was insane now, and that his mental condition was such as to make him incapable of consulting rationally with his counsel.

Dr. Hamilton, retained as an expert by the lawyers who first undertook the Thaw defense, made four examinations of the defendant in the Tombs, the first of which was two days after the homicide. As a result he reported his conclusion that Thaw is a victim of dementia praecox of a paranoiac type, and that the ultimate recovery in such cases is only about two per cent. This did not suit the defendant, who scorned the insanity defense except as a temporary expedient, and who dismissed as his counsel the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge.

That Mr. Jerome has all along believed that Thaw was insane when he shot White and is insane at the present time he made perfectly plain in the course of an impassioned address to the court after Dr. Hamilton had testified. The scene when he made his appeal was one of great excitement. Every spectator was leaning forward in his seat, fearful of missing a single word and hung upon the sentences that fell from Mr. Jerome's lips. The District Attorney was much moved and Justice Fitzgerald himself showed that the case had reached its crisis.

As for Thaw's lawyers, a condition bordering upon panic prevailed among them. They were all on their feet and most of them had hurried inside of the rail where they could talk with Mr. Delmas. This was the state of affairs when the jury had been sent from the room in order that Mr. Jerome might tell the court what he knew from his investigations about the mental history of Harry Thaw, but which technical legal objections had kept him from getting before the jury. This was the thunderbolt that smote the Thaw defense:

"If the real facts were known, I have no right to be here trying this man. It would be absolutely prohibitive. But this knowledge that I have cannot be put in any legal form at this time. If it could it would shock the conscience of the court and instantly this case would be stopped.

"I know and so does every man who has followed this case and who has watched this defendant, that Harry Thaw is insane at this moment, and that he is absolutely incapable of conferring with his lawyers. To execute him would be butchery. We have no right to try him for his life."

A babel of voices broke upon the courtroom—Jerome, Delmas, Gleason endeavoring to get the ear of the court, Justice Fitzgerald striving to calm the agitated advocates. In all parts of the room excited men were on their feet, despite the loud cries of the attendants for order.

Surely, no more dramatic picture has ever been presented in a court of justice.

But this was not all. The District Attorney, raising his voice to a pitch that found the remotest corners of the courtroom, proceeded to make a savage attack on the lawyers for the defense.

He asserted that if certain statements in regard to Thaw's actions which had been made to him were true, he would ask the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to take judicial notice of the conduct of the lawyers for the defendant.

The appointment of a lunacy commission has been invoked under Section 658, Chapter 5 of the Criminal Code. Under this the court is empowered. If the defendant is reported sane, the trial will be resumed; if reported insane, he will be sent without further proceedings to Matteawan.

A THEFT OF $400,000.

American Mail Bag Stolen on Board La Provence—One Arrest.

Paris, France.—An American mail bag, the contents of which are valued at approximately $400,000, has been stolen. The theft occurred on board the French Line steamer La Provence, which left New York on February 28 and arrived at Havre on March 6.

The postal authorities have placed the affair in the hands of detectives.

A man giving the name of Butloss was arrested here recently with American securities to the value of $42,000 in his possession for which he could not account satisfactorily. Butloss is believed to be an accomplice of the thieves, and to have been attempting to negotiate the proceeds of the robbery.

BANK TELLER ABSCONDS.

It is Rumored That He Had Been Playing the Stock Market.

Charlotte, N. C.—Frank H. Jones, teller in the Charlotte National Bank, left town carrying $50,000 of the bank's cash and leaving a further shortage of $18,000.

He told a bank official he had an urgent call to Richmond. The bank has offered $1000 for his arrest.

Jones was prominent in social and church circles, being a Sunday-school teacher and otherwise religiously allied. He left a wife in a hospital under treatment, and three children.

The shortage will not inconvenience the bank, as it has $1,100,000 assets.

It is said Jones played the stock market.

EXPELLED FROM ASSEMBLY.

Punishment Inflicted on the Rev. J. Frank Burke at Trenton.

Trenton, N. J.—For the first time in the history of the New Jersey Legislature a preacher has been driven off the floor of the House. This was the punishment inflicted on the Rev. J. Frank Burke, secretary of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, because of his charges of conspiracy made against Assemblymen Perkins, Klenert and Alexander for the failure of the House Judiciary Committee, of which they were a majority, to report the local option bill introduced at the instance of the League.

Mr. Burke failed to substantiate his charges and this was the punishment decided upon by the House.

MOB LYNCHES TWO WOMEN.

Negresses, Who Had Attacked White Woman, Shot in Arkansas.

Stamps, Ark.—Two negro women were shot to death by a mob at McKamie, a village six miles south of here. The town has no jail and the women had been locked up in the schoolhouse and a guard placed in charge of the building. They were charged with using a razor with probably fatal effect on Mrs. Ella Rhoton, a white woman, and her daughter, and kicking Mrs. Rhoton's little son.

JAIL FOR COAL TRUST HEAD.

Omaha Judge Fines Howell and Gives Him Six Months' Sentence.

Omaha.—Samuel E. Howell, president of the Omaha Coal Trust, was sentenced to serve six months in jail and pay a fine of $2000. This is the limit of the law.

Judge Sutton, in sentencing Howell told him he was "no better than a common highwayman who put a revolver to a man's face and made him give up his money." He said that if it had not been for money and good lawyers Howell would have been "in jail long ago, where he belonged."

AIR THREE GRAFT SCANDALS

Revelations at San Francisco, Harrisburg and Albany.

Testimony Showing How Huge Sums Were Divided by Boodlers—Wealthy Men Involved.

San Francisco, Cal.—Abe Ruef, the political boss of San Francisco, when he learned that he had been indicted on seventy-two counts in the gigantic bribe scandal, offered to confess if promised immunity. The offer was made to Detective Burns, who is guarding him in the San Francisco Hotel.

In all the amount of money involved in the disclosures will reach $1,000,000. Of this sum nearly one-half was given up by the city railroads for franchises. One telephone company, it is asserted, paid $200,000, and another just half that sum.

Two Supervisors confessed as soon as they appeared before the Grand Jury and the others soon followed their example. As told to the jury, the railroad fund of $450,000 was so divided that Ruef got $175,000, while the shares of the Supervisors ran from $15,000 down to $4000 each. The Supervisors got $3000 each from one telephone company and $750 from a gas company.

In the confessions made relative to the actual taking of money by the Supervisors it was not brought out that Mayor Schmitz has direct connection with the deals made with the members of the Board of Supervisors. In the majority of cases Ruef dealt with one man, who passed the money out to his associates.

First and most important was the deal by which the United Railroads got an overhead trolley franchise.

Ruef demanded $450,000 to carry through the transaction. This money was drawn in installments calculated to be small enough to divert suspicion.

After giving $85,000 to the Supervisors and $85,000 for a person Ruef insisted must be taken care of, but who may never have received the money, $280,000 was left to be divided between Schmitz and Ruef.

The corruption surrounding the franchise granted to the Home Telephone Company was even worse.

Another transaction was the prize-fight boodle of $20,000. James Coffroth, Willus Britt, Morris Levy and Eddie Graney, known as the "fight trust," each subscribed $5000 to secure the exclusive privilege of prize-fight permits for 1906.

GOT $90,748 FOR WORK COSTING $2060.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The Capitol investigating committee resumed its inquiry into the cost of the new State Capitol. The testimony showed that John H. Sanderson & Co., of Philadelphia, contractors for furnishing the Capitol, were paid by the State $90,748.40 for the rostrums in the Senate and House caucus rooms.

The sub-contractor for this work testified that he was paid $2060 by Sanderson for these rostrums. The testimony of the same sub-contractor showed that Sanderson's profit on the finished woodwork in fourteen other rooms in the building amounted to $126,645.60.

Murray Gibson, who was an unsuccessful bidder against Sanderson for the contract for decorating and painting the building, testified that there was a difference of $1.99½ cents a foot in favor of the State in his bid and that of Sanderson's, and that if the State had accepted his bid it would have saved more than $600,000 on this item alone and he (Gibson) would have made a nice profit.

JACKSON DEMANDS $117,161 ALLEGED CANAL GRAFT.

Albany, N. Y.—Colossal graft connected with the $101,000,000 barge canal work has occurred, according to Attorney-General Jackson. As a result, he has demanded that the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad Company refund the State treasury $117,161, which the Attorney-General claims the last State canal board decided to pay the company without warrant of law for a bridge of the company, displaced by the big canal in Oneida County.

Mr. Jackson says the improvement of the canal necessitated the alteration of the railway and the rebuilding of the bridge across Wood Creek, and that it was the duty of the railroad company to do the work at its own expense, the State being under no legal obligation to pay any part of the cost.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH DEAD.

Suddenly Loses Strength After Partially Recovering From Operation.

Boston.—Thomas Bailey Aldrich died at his home in Mount Vernon street, aged seventy.

Some weeks ago Mr. Aldrich underwent an operation at the Homoeopathic Hospital in this city, and although for a time his convalescence was extremely slow the past two weeks have been so promising that the patient was removed to his home.

It was thought the change would prove beneficial, although it was recognized that his condition was still serious.

Early next day Mr. Aldrich suddenly became worse and gradually lost his strength. He died about 5 o'clock.

PE-RU-NA A MEDICAL COMPOUND

In any medical compound as much depends upon the manner in which it is compounded as upon the ingredients used.

First, there must be a due proportion of the ingredients. Each drug in the pharmacopeia has its special action. To combine any drug with other drugs that have slightly different action, the combination must be made with strict reference to the use for which the compound is intended. The drugs may be well selected as to their efficacy, but the compound ENTIRELY SPOILED BY THE PROPORTION in which they are combined.

It takes years and years of experience to discover this proportion. There is no law of chemistry, of pharmacy, by which the exact balance of proportion can be determined. EXPERIENCE IS THE ONLY GUIDE.

In compounding a catarrh remedy Dr. Hartman has had many years' experience. In the use of the various ingredients which composed the catarrh remedy, Peruna, he has learned, little by little, how to harmonize the action of each ingredient, how to combine them into a stable compound, how to arrange them into such nice proportions as to blend the taste, the operation and the chemical peculiarities of each several ingredient in order to produce a pharmaceutical product beyond the criticism of doctors, pharmacists or chemists.

WE REPEAT, THAT AS MUCH DEPENDS ON THE WAY IN WHICH THE DRUGS ARE COMBINED AS DEPENDS UPON THE DRUGS THEMSELVES.

The compound must present a stability which is not affected by changes of temperature, not affected by exposure to the air, not affected by age. It must be so combined that it will remain just the same whether used in the logging or mining camps of the northwest or the coffee plantations of the tropics.

A complete list of the ingredients of Peruna would not enable any druggist or physician to reproduce Peruna. It is the skill and sagacity by which these ingredients are brought together that give Peruna much of its peculiar claims as an efficacious catarrh remedy.

However much virtue each ingredient of Peruna may possess, the value of the compound depends largely upon the manner and proportion in which they are combined. The right ingredients, put together rightly, is the only way a medical compound can be made of real value.

The Check Came Back.

The Monthly Bulletin of the National Association of Credit Men prints a paragraph from a letter of a prominent manufacturer which is clipped from the Stoves and Hardware Reporter. The paragraph referred to illustrates the inconsistency and hardship sometimes inflicted upon the manufacturer and jobber in settling bills, and especially small sums through the medium of "local checks:"

"We regret the necessity of having to return your check for twenty-seven cents. We know the note is all right, but, unfortunately, we cannot get the bloated capitalists and bankers to collect matters of this kind without charging us for it, and as it would cost us twenty-five cents to collect your twenty-seven-cent check and a two-cent postage stamp to acknowledge receipt of it, there would be nothing left, so we take the liberty of returning your check, and would ask you to send us stamps for the amount."

Beyond Repair.

"What do you know of the character of this man?" was asked of a witness at a police court the other day.

"What do I know of his character? I know it to be unbleachable, Your Honor," he replied, with much emphasis.—American Home Monthly.

The Universal Solvent.

A "burglar proof" safe was robbed by a boy in New Jersey the other day. He opened the safe with a hairpin. This leads to the suspicion that he is a woman in disguise. A woman can do anything with that instrument.—Cleveland Leader.

Poor Paint is Expensive

If one is rich enough to repaint his buildings every year for the pleasure of having a change of color scheme, the quality of the paint used may cut little figure. But if it is desirable to cut the painting bills down to the least amount possible per year, it is of the utmost importance that the paint be made of Pure White Lead and the best of Linseed Oil. There are imitations in the form of alleged White Lead, and there are substitutes in the form of ready-prepared paints.

We guarantee our White Lead to be absolutely pure, and the Dutch Boy on the side of every keg is your safeguard. Look for him.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Terrible Itching Prevented Sleep—Hands, Arms, and Legs Affected —Cured in 6 Days by Cuticura.

"I had eczema nearly fifteen years. The affected parts were my hands, arms and legs. They were the worst in the winter time and were always itchy, and I could not keep from scratching them. I had to keep both hands bandaged all the time, and at night I would have to scratch through the bandages as the itching was so severe, and at times I would have to tear everything off my hands to scratch the skin. I could not rest or sleep. I had several physicians treat me, but they could not give me a permanent cure, nor even could they stop the itching. After using the Cuticura Soap, one box Cuticura Ointment and two bottles Cuticura Resolvent for about six days the itching had ceased, and now the sores have disappeared, and I never felt better in my life than I do now. Edward Worell, Band 30th, U. S. Infantry, Fort Crook, Nebraska."

Keeping Off the Burglars.

Mr. and Mrs. Choice had a magnificent Great Dane, a brindle fellow so tall that he could eat off the dinner table without raising his head an inch above its natural poise. They called him Bowse. Bowse died, and his mistress, frightened by the repeated burglaries in the neighborhood, thought she would not be able to remain in the house alone while her husband was in the city. "I have an idea," said Mr. Choice. "We will have him stuffed and mounted, and stand him near the door, where every one who calls can see him. If you go to the door and see a person whom you suspect of being not quite respectable, catch Bowse by the collar, just as if he were alive, and make a show of holding him back from tearing the caller to pieces." And so it was done, and the stuffed Bowse was as effectual as the animated one. Among the light-fingered fraternity and the second-story gents it soon got to be known that an exceedingly dangerous dog was in that house; and they kept away.

Wireless Telephony.

A German inventor, E. Ruhmer, has recently contrived an apparatus for transmitting spoken words to a distance, by means of electric waves such as are used in wireless telegraphy. The invention is based on the use of the Poulsen high frequency arc, which sends out waves through the ether. The varying sounds of the voice when impressed upon the arc through a telephonic connection produce variations, which are believed to affect both the frequency and the intensity of the waves, which, on being transmitted by means of an antenna, or aerial wire, about five feet long, were transformed at a receiving station some forty yards distant into audible words. Ruhmer believes that by employing antennae of greater length he will be able to send spoken words to a distance of several miles.—Youth's Companion.

The Musical Fly.

A wrong note had occurred in the orchestra several times. The conductor in despair commenced an examination of the music of the respective instruments. On looking at the first violin copy he spied a dead fly on the music.

"You idiot!" he roared to the French violinist, "can't you see that is a fly on your music?"

"No matter," retorted the Frenchman, "he was there, and I played him."—Life.

GOOD NATURED AGAIN.

Good Humor Returns With Change to Proper Food.

"For many years I was a constant sufferer from indigestion, and nervousness amounting almost to prostration," writes a Montana man.

"My blood was impoverished, the vision was blurred and weak, with moving spots before my eyes. This was a steady daily condition. I grew ill-tempered, and eventually got so nervous I could not keep my books posted, nor handle accounts satisfactorily. I can't describe my sufferings.

"Nothing I ate agreed with me, till one day, I happened to notice Grape-Nuts in a grocery store, and bought a package, out of curiosity to know what it was.

"I liked the food from the very first, eating it with cream, and now I buy it by the case and use it daily. I soon found that Grape-Nuts food was supplying brain and nerve force as nothing in the drug line ever had done or could do.

"It wasn't long before I was restored to health, comfort and happiness. Through the use of Grape-Nuts food my digestion has been restored, my nerves are steady once more, my eyesight is good again, my mental faculties are clear and acute, and I have become so good-natured that my friends are truly astonished at the change. I feel younger and better than I have for 20 years. No amount of money would induce me to surrender what I have gained through the use of Grape-Nuts food." "LOOK FOR THE WOMAN" HERE; STUDY HER VARYING MOODS

Talk About "Laying Bare Her Soul"---These Brief Stories, Gathered From One Day's Telegraphic News, Prove What Adam Knew, That She Excites at Once the Loftiest and Lowest Emotions.

It is not necessary to "look for the woman" in any of these short and interesting stories. As always she aroused the love, inspired the jealousy, excited the hatred that lends them all a moral and makes them all so valuable to the student of human nature—New York World.

Father Tears Bride of 14 From Husband's Arms.

Richmond, Va.—Jeter Matherly, a young man of Pittsylvania County, is under arrest at Chatham, charged with swearing falsely to the age of Miss Edna Adkins, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Preston Adkins, to get a license to marry her. The Rev. A. T. Ponton, pastor of High Point Church, had just said, "Now you are married; may you be happy," when Papa Adkins and a policeman entered the parsonage.

The father seized the tearful girl and took her home, where he locked her up. The young bridegroom cried and raged in the road and begged to see his young wife in vain. Adkins says he will prosecute Matherly for abduction as well as false swearing and that on these grounds he will divorce his daughter. Matherly protests his love for the girl, who bitterly resents her father's interference.

Bridegroom of 18 Shoots Wife and Kills Himself.

Richmond, Va.—Oris Thompson, a cotton mill operator, eighteen years old, shot and fatally wounded his young wife and killed himself at Lynchburg. They married three months ago and quarrelled two weeks ago. Then the bride, who has worn long skirts only since her wedding, left her husband and sought a boarding house. Thompson went to his wife's apartments and talked with her awhile.

She vowed she would not return to him. Mad with jealous rage, he drew a revolver and shot her twice, one ball piercing her neck. Then Thompson blew out his alleged brains.

Kills Man, Flees With Victim's Wife; is Captured.

Richmond, Va.—"Kid" Solon unwisely killed Edward Darling at the Eskridge & Carrington's camp, two miles from Free Hill. Darling's wife left him two weeks ago and went to Solon's home. Darling, who is said to have made threats to kill Solon, went to Solon's house. Solon saw him coming, ran into the yard and fired twice, killing Darling instantly. He took $40 from Darling's pockets and fled with Darling's wife. But the fact that she was with him made his capture easier, and he was soon taken.

Jealous Woman Puts on Man's Clothes and Shoots.

Kenosha, Wis.—A woman wearing man's clothes shot twice at Herbert A. Graves, a young unmarried architect, in his office. One bullet pierced his left hand. He says only:

"The person who shot me stood behind portieres and I saw a raincoat and women's boots and a man's hat She ran away."

She left this note, which the police have:

"I have decided to kill myself. Don't bring any more girls from Kenosha to Racine while I am alive. I would have killed you last night only my nerve failed me."

The note is unsigned. The police say the writer is a married woman of Racine, where the Graves family live. Graves admits that the Racine woman is jealous of him, but vows he is not certain that she shot him.

"Pleasant Surprise" For Jones and His True Wife

Saltillo, Mexico.—The wife of G. Belle Jones, a wealthy American business man in North Mexico, has arrived here from Long Beach, Cal., where she lived for several years. She was pained and shocked to find her husband living with another Mrs. Jones. He weakened, was taken before the local authorities and swore the Long Beach woman was his legal wife.

Jones came to Mexico twelve years ago, bringing wife No. 2 with him. The original Mrs. Jones says that she received letters regularly from him. He always wrote that he was working at a small salary in a remote mining camp and could not get enough money ahead to visit her. She has been saving money for several years to make this visit, thinking to give him a pleasant surprise. He has a son born in Mexico.

Died Rather Than Marry Man Her Mother Chose.

St. Louis.—Rather than marry the man her widowed mother chose for her husband, Miss Grace Truitt, a pretty girl of sixteen, killed herself. She took carbolic acid at Mrs. Henry Lang's home, No. 4252 Finney avenue, and died in an ambulance on the way to the City Hospital. A letter from J. H. Weakley, of Pueblo, Col., was found in the girl's pocket. In it he called her his "black-eyed friend." He regretted, too, that Miss Grace and her mother could not get along amicably.

"I often advised Grace to be less girlish and to think of marriage," said Mrs. Truitt. "Mr. Weakley was deeply in love with my daughter and wanted to marry her. I favored the match. We moved to No. 90 North Garrison avenue two weeks ago, and I told Grace that she could not receive any young men there."

All of a Sudden Wintarberg Lost a Good Appetite.

Lakeview, Iowa.—Mrs. Charles Wintarberg, the young and pretty bride of a business man here, has suddenly disappeared, causing a sensation, particularly to Mr. Wintarberg. He found this note on the dining table instead of his dinner:

"Good-by, Charlie. I am going away. I do not love you any more."

Inquiry develops that a well-known young man of Auburn, Sac County, to whom Mrs. Wintarberg was once engaged, is absent from home. The husband says he had no intimation of his bride's unhappiness.

During the month of February the dead letter office handled 1,050-303 pieces of estrayed or unclaimed mail matter, and returned practically all of them to the senders. The money remittances found in 6212 of the letters totaled nearly $6000. Here is a lesson upon haste and bad writing.

The oldest citizen of Philadelphia is Joseph Klein, of 1025 Girard avenue, who was 107 years old Tuesday. Mr. Klein was born in Pisek, Bohemia, March 19, 1800, and came to this country in 1873. He was married three times and was the father of eight children. He is still very well preserved.

The attention of farmers who make cider is called to the new pure food law, which states that every barrel of vinegar that is put out must be labeled plainly with the person who barreled it, together with a statement as to whether the contents are composition acid or real cider vinegar, made without the chemical. There is a heavy penalty for violating this law.

THE COMMON PEOPLE.

Only four centuries ago Columbus fair strand was discovered, as a refuge for the poor and oppressed of the old world. In this short time the primeval forests of the great New World have been converted into fertile fields whose produce fills the granaries of many nations. The whole world is becoming more and more beautiful and today as we look from a mountains summit over the adjacent valleys and behold, here the fields of grain waving their golden tops to the breezes of the air and notice beyond a concourse of the monarchs of the forest, we cannot but conclude that the world is more beautiful than ever before.

There is a certain parallelism running between nature and man. The world increases in beauty, each fruit and flower sheds more lustre and sunshine and man, the supreme head of the Almighty's handiwork, becomes more beautiful, more useful, more noble.

There have been different epochs in the world's civilization the same as there have been different ages in the earth's developement.

The ages of feudalism and of absolute rule have passed away and the age of today is the age of the common people. The people have won the supremacy for themselves it was not Edward III, but the stout yeomanry of the English army who dealt the death-blow to aristocratic feudalism on the field of Crecy.

With the downfall of feudalism the restraints to the sovereign were removed and his rule became more absolute and despctic. The common people who brought about his rule were those to whose lot it fell to overthrow him, and as the mist of smoke arises from the battlefields of the seventeenth century, the tyrants sceptre no longer meets our gaze, but we behold standing on a footing of equality, a vast army of uncrowned kings, the common people, destined to become the rulers in the world's golden era.

Elevation in any of the walks of life brings with it added responsibilities, so man's elevation in the sphere of governmental affairs puts on him new obligations. Experience shows that man is prepared for the new duties imposed upon him. Generations made ready for Emerson, the philosopher and for Paderswiki the musician.

Longfellow, Holmes and Lowell inherited the "culminature humanities of sturdy, intellectual ancestors". And the present generations of common people have fallen heir to the love of liberty which flowed in the veins of the "Revolutionary fathers". The same spirit which was characteristic of the men who fought under Cromwell and hurled into oblivion the doctrine of the "Divine Right of Kings". Their ancestors were numbered among the faithful band of Wallace who freed noble Scotland from the chains of bondage.

In the rule of the common people slavery has ceased to mar the social developement of man. Disease is fast losing its power. Science is giving us new conceptions of the universe. Invention has revolutionized industry and navigation. The coats of mail worn by warriors of past ages are far too small for the average man to-day. The child of the common people receives better education than did the sons of kings. Public libraries enable all to converse with philosophers and sages of every age. Men no longer erect temples "To the unknown God" but from every hill and dale ring out the notes of welcome for all to assemble in the courts of the Lord. In past ages it was only the nobility and other privileged classes who could enjoy the fruits of advancement, but in this age, where the common people reign, all become partakers of the blessings of invention, industry, education and religion.

Spain does not appreciate the value of her common people, their games of chief delight are those which gave pleasure to the populace of Rome in the days of Nero and Caligula.

Turkey is still ruled by an absolute monarchy and the cries of the slaughtered Armenians still echo in our ears. Russia has not hearkened to the message of Tolsoi and the massacre of God's chosen people and the rulers greed for wealth are her latest crimes. Examples prove that the nations in which the common people reign are the nations which march in the van of progressing civilization.

People say that this form of government shall finally fail. They refer us to the golden age of Pericles, when the common people ruled and Athens was the centre of art and literature. As we look back with admiration on the age of Pericles, so they believe, future generations will gaze with awe upon the present age of the common people. But the Athenian ideal is not ours. Calvary had not yet been made sacred by a Savior's death. The warlike Spartans could teach them the respect due to old age Love first grew from the family to the tribe, to the nation and finally to the whole world. But in Athens love scarcely existed in the family, but for more than nineteen centuries we have been approaching our ideal of love as set forth by him who was born "King of the Jews" and the present age is distinguished by its love for others. The jealousies between race and race between church and church and between nation and nation are fast disappearing. The principl that "might makes right" is no longer countenanced.

This is an age to which no other is to be compared; man is faster approaching his ideal the "King of Kings". If we be allowed to gaze from the home of many mansions, upon this mortal abode, shall we not see this age followed by another even more glorious known as the "Era of Kings", for in the eyes of the Almighty there are no common people, but all are "Kings and Priests unto God".

The Home Builders.

Periodical literature on the important subject of building the home has hitherto neglected one essential detail, in fact the fundamental point of the whole subject, selecting the site. The April not of the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION supplies this missing detail in the shape of a comprehensive article by Henry Harrison Lewis. Mr. Lewis believes that experience in land seeking suggests the following rules for use in choosing land for home building.

Accessibility, or distance from place of business; nearness of supplies; title; schools; privacy; water supply and drainage; neighborhood; view or outlook; fire protection and insurance; protection from storm and flood; taxes and probable rise in price of land.

Of these the most important thing, after satisfying one-self of the availabilty of a site, is the title. The question of schools is one appealing direct to the parents. Mr. Lewis suggests as a matter of precaution that the home seeker should look up the school board and make inquiries concerning the fitness of its members for the positions. An efficient school board is almost invariably proof of good school equipment.

The Easter Song.

Down in the ground a lily bulb lay,
So cold and damp its bed
That over and over again it would say,
I surley can not lift my head.

When up from the land of spices and palm,
The south wind lovingly came,
Her breath smelled of roses and violets blue:
As she chanted an Easter psalm.

Then over the hill the sunshine came,
His colors of crimson and gold,
He called the lily by its name,
Bade "its waxen bells unfold."

So the human heart was heavy and sad,
Life was dark and full of pain.
Christ died and arose, so let us be glad,
Like the lily we shall live again.

No more we'll think of the lonely grave,
Where we laid our darling down,
With Him who gave his life to save,
Merry sing, "the Easter Song."

MRS. S. HEATON.

A Birthday Surprise Party.

At the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Pheasant 44 persons out of 60 that were invited, met to celebrate Mr. Pheasant's 74th birthday, which was quite a surprise to the old gentleman, he saw the rigs coming in and said to his wife, "Mother what is wrong or what is going on" he soon found out but took it very calm, and in his kind affectionate manner greeted each one with a hearty welcome as they entered his door.

After all had passed in with their baskets and boxes of good things such as most of us enjoy for we surely had a a feast before us, Mr. Pheasant remarked "Well this is surely a wonderful surprise to me", now I want every one to make themselves at home which I think we all surely did. He had remarked to his good wife this morning how well he was felling and how thankful to the good Lord we all was for this, for he like some more of us is not always feeling just the best.

Now next thing on the list was dinner which was not a bad thing to have so we had plenty of cooks that went to work to set a table which was not hard as all the people had prepared something.

Mr. Pheasant recieved quite a nice lot of presents which he seemed to appreciate among them was a beautiful picture presented by Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Pheasant, a pair of slippers by Mrs. Saylor and a rocker presented by his last five children. The children were all present accept, Mrs. Gehrett, of Winfields Kansas. One brother, a half brother and two sisters of Mr. Pheasant were present, Samuel P. Pheasant, of Page and Alfred Pheasant, of Calvin, the sisters being Mrs. Annie Gosnell, of Cassville and Mrs. Belle Wright, of Calvin. Mrs Rachel David, of Mill Creek and Mrs. Mary Smith of Colfax were not able to be there as they are both very old ladies, the balance present were, Mrs. Annie Bowman and three sons, Mrs Ida Saylor and two sons, of Williamsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Curfman, of Cassville. Ira Pheasant and wife of Calvin, Mrs. Amy Greenland and son, of Duncanville, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Greenland and son, of Colfax, Mrs. Florence Mansberger and son, of Johnstown, Mrs. Samuel Pheasant, Mr. J. C. Wright, Mrs. A. B. Pheasant, Mr, and Mrs. James Swope, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Pheasant, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Smith, Mrs. Julia Bowman, Sheldon Bowman, Dollie Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Mansberger, Mr. Arlie Mansberger, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bumgardener, Miss Jeretta Bumgardener, Miss Pearl Bumgardener, Mrs. Belle Pheasant and three children.

In the evening after a well spent day Mr Pheasant requested that his wife his daughter-in-law and his seven children should get together, when this was done he gave to each of them a $5 bill which they all thanked him for. He then gave us a little talk, he said he enjoyed himself very much, thanked all for their kindness and spoke of what a grand reunion their would be in heaven, and if we did not meet here again he hoped to meet us all there where friends meet to part no more.

We started for our home hoping to meet at more such occasions, may he live to see many more happy birthdays is our desire. May God protect us and be with us all till we meet again.

We have leased the Cement Block plant of Swope-Gayton Quarry Co. and will operate same. If you have a wall to build it will pay to see us, we do contrart work. Cement for sale at factory.

March 31 (Easter Sunday—Missions): "New Life For the World."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Rom. vi, 4-14; Jer. xvi, 19-21; Hos. ii, 23; II Tim. i, 9, 10.

This is the gladdest, brightest day this world has ever seen because more men are clearly seeing that there is new light for all the world and are setting themselves more resolutely than ever before to carry that light to all who sit in darkness and are also finding out more practical means of doing that work of enlightening the darkness.

Then, again, we are a little nearer the consummation of all things. The end is actually a little nearer. The judgment hastens, and this world age is closer to its termination, when the Master shall return according to His promise to receive us unto Himself.

The Christian church has been slow in recognizing her mission to carry the gospel to all the world. She is not yet fully aroused to the task, has not fully put forth her strength and adopted the wisest means to accomplish her Christ appointed mission, but she is farther advanced than ever before.

We begin to see it clearly at last. Christ died for the race, for all men. He came to seek and save the lost. The most degraded are as much within the reach of His mercy as the more cultivated. He saved us. He saved our fathers. What were our ancestors a few generations back but half naked, painted savages? The only thing which lifted us out of our savagery was the gospel of Jesus Christ preached by faithful Christian missionaries. If God could in the course of a few generations, comparatively, lift us from the hole of that pit and put us on the high places of power in the earth, can He not lift up the other people who are now sitting in degradation?

One lesson we are beginning to learn from the story of the past—the people to whom the light comes must either rise and follow or forever perish from the earth. This has been the fate of all peoples in the times gone by. It is today going on in the world with the inexorableness of fate.

The fresh spirit of brotherliness is kindling as never before in the hearts of men and finding new ways of expression not only through their lips, but in their deeds. We can no longer sit down in contentment when we know the truth, when we are blessed with peace. We are constrained to go out and find our brother who has been stripped by thieves and is half dead and bring him in and care for him. Our heart is in this. The Master has been here.

It means that even a king cannot with impunity treat with cruelty a degraded savage people in the wilds of Africa for his own gain and be left alone. Does some one ask whose business is it? Well, wait a bit and you may see that it is the business of the church of God, and that means it is the business of the whole civilized world, and they will attend to it also.

Whoever is in the dark must have the light. The Christ has come. He walks this earth today in power. The old mountains are being brought low, the valleys are beginning to fill, the rough places are getting a little less rough, some stones have been dug out and on the whole the highway is coming along in good shape.

Light for all the world! Are you helping to spread it as well as you can?

May this present year see the morning mount all up the sky as never before. God hasten the perfect day, the day of earth's full redemption!

The Marvel, The Meaning and The Power of the Resurrection

By William Croswell Doane
Bishop of Albany

WHEN the modern mind staggers before the story of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead it fails to realize what its only actual difficulty is. St. Paul's question, "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?" still has but one answer—namely, that there is no reason why it should be thought incredible; because raising the dead, as the Apostle illustrates it in his Epistle to the Corinthians, is the most natural and useful thing in the world under certain conditions. "That which men sow is not quickened except it die."

Life not only after, but through and by means of death, is the universal law and the universal event. Only there must come first the undoing by decay of the bondage within which the living principle of the seed is held. So long as it is imprisoned in the shell it is "bare grain," but when its outer covering is dead in the cocoon, or broken in the egg, or rotted in the grain, then the latent life comes forth and God gives it a body, and "to every seed its own body." So after death and burial, when the wrappings of this earthly flesh are dissolved and done away, "the body that shall be," "the body of glory," shall emerge in the fullness of time.

The miracle or marvel of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, like other miracles, lies in the fact that it disregarded the element of time and also did away with the condition of decay. "He saw no corruption."

So much for the marvel of it. Now for the meaning of it.

First of all, of course, it means that all the dead shall rise and live again. "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so they also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." The corollary to the article in the Creed, "the third day He rose again," is the article "I believe in the resurrection of the body, I look for the resurrection of the dead or from the dead." One does not need, one would not dare, to draw away the hearts and hopes of men from this great and blessed revelation of Holy Scripture, this strong and positive assertion of the Christian faith. But it is wrong to postpone the meaning of our Lord's resurrection to this final point of human history. It has a clear and more immediate application of what the Apostle calls "the power of His resurrection," "dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God, through Jesus Christ our Lord." This must be recognized and realized as the immediate practical purpose and result of the great fact of Easter Day.

What is its message to men and women?

It is easy to dream a dream of hope and delight about the far future; easy to have a sentiment and emotion that enable us to face physical death with an outlook beyond the grave and console us in the hour of bereavement. God forbid that there should be any shadowing of this hope. But the practical question concerns our daily life now.

Humanity stands to-day, as it has stood for all these centuries, facing the fact of the wonderful life that our Lord lived here on earth, with the strange and inexplicable combination of fleshy reality without the restraints and hindrances of the flesh. And that means, in the first place, the pattern set, and in the next place the power given to us to live our lives on higher lines.

Translated into plain English, the great Easter thought is that we may not be absorbed and immersed in merely earthly, temporal, carnal thoughts and things. Life, never more than in our day, is crowded with business, with pleasure, even where it is not choked with indulgence and success.

The idlers and loungers, with no thought but amusement, are far too many.

The craze for accumulation of material wealth is wearing out the strength and dulling all the finer faculties of men and women. And the carelessness and idleness of people who, with opportunities of service to society and the demands of home duties, waste daylight hours and turn night into day with games of chance, accentuated too often with the covetousness of gambling, are a reproach to the best inheritances and instincts of Americans.

"You have no leisure class in America," an Englishman said once to an American girl.

"Yes," she said, "we have, but we call them tramps."

Leisure there ought to be. Men and women there must be who are free from the strain and strenuousness of incessant occupation, but it ought to be a leisure for intellectual cultivation, for philanthropic interest, for the storing of energy, physical, mental and spiritual, which shall benefit mankind.

"Awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead!" This is the Easter call, the Easter cry.

Hiding even one talent in the napkin of refined indolence or self-indulgence or burying it in the dirt of sensuality and sin, either one makes an "unprofitable servant" and lays up against the second coming of the Lord an account of wasted powers and lost opportunities which will then be beyond recall.

AN EASTER MENU.

We like an American dinner, don't you? Here's one that can be prepared by any housewife:

Small Blue Points, Half Shell.
Olives. Salted Almonds. Radishes.
Cream of Asparagus.
Brook Trout Fried With Pork.
Saratoga Chips. Sliced Cucumbers.
Marrow Bones on Toast.
Roast of Spring Lamb. Browned Potatoes.
Green Peas, English Style.
Snow Fritters, Country Sauce.
Frozen Lemons.
Potted Pigeons. Easter Pudding.
Lettuce Salad.
Bon Bons. Fruit. Cakes. Cream Cheese. Coffee.

Easter.

It is interesting to note that people in general are inclining more and more to the celebration of church festivals which were formerly observed by but one or two divisions of the Christian year. Even those who profess to be among the faithless may meet, too, on the same ground at this springtime festival, and observe and be thankful for the reawakening of the year—the symbol of new life which one finds in all nature. Whatever his belief or non-belief, no one should be unmoved or unresponsive to the new season, to the promise of life which he sees every year renewed and reiterated in nature, as well as finds in the tenets of his faith. The Easter-time should be a season of joy, of fresh hope, of new endeavor, of practical faith in humanity and in God.—Woman's Home Companion.

EASTER
Lo, the swiftly circling seasons
Bring the Easter-tide again,
And its carols full of gladness
Thrill with joy the hearts of men
Here our glad triumphant voices
Swell once more the chorus-lay,
For the Christ, the Lord and Savior
Rose to life on Easter Day
MARCH

Easter Plant Legend.

The Christian legends connected with plants generally explain their behavior during Passion week. The aspen still shivers with remorse because, when Christ passed, it had boldly faced the heavens instead of bowing its head in company with the other trees. The Saviour cast one look at it, and the memory of that sorrowful glance is handed down even to this generation.

The Easter Chick's Fate.

"Peep! Peep!" said the chick as he turned about,
A little fat fluff of bright yellow—
"If I had been late but a week and a day,
I'd be an unfortunate fellow.
An Easter egg is an excellent feature,
If you're not the egg," said the silly creature.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON, THE FAMOUS DIVINE.

Theme: A Christian. Why?

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church on the theme, "A Christian. Why?" the pastor, the Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, took as his text Acts 26: 28, "A Christian." He said:

This is the question that men who are outside of Christ ask. This is the inquiry that many of the best souls in the service of the Master find difficulty to answer in such fashion as to satisfy the intellects of those who do not enjoy the same spiritual blessings that they themselves possess in Jesus. This is the interrogation that we must be prepared to grant a sane and convincing reply if we are to be the workers in the vineyard of our Lord, that He desires us to be. We should be prepared at all times to undergo examination on this point. Always must we be ready to declare the reasons for and the reasonableness of the faith that is within us. And yet how many of us can, on the moment, give clear, concise, argumentatively upholdable grounds for our spiritual faith. The most of us fall back upon the assertion that we are Christians because we find in it the satisfaction of our minds, our hearts, our souls. For us this is sufficient. But the man who goes behind our satisfaction is oftentimes the man we meet and a man who always must be replied to with reasonable evidence and convicted out of the fullness of sensible, intellectually compelling truth. He asks what are the grounds of our satisfaction; what is the brand of the satisfaction that we find glory in; why, in short, are we at the root Christians?

A Christian. Why? And to answer that we must look within and without us; we must take counsel with our souls and with the countless souls of the universe of God; we must consider contemporaneous life and we must examine history; we must understand the spiritual and the moral elements in man; we must take cognizance, with care, of the human race, everywhere and in all time. It is not necessary that we shall be experts upon the minute details of the historic life of humanity. It is essential that we shall be correct in our judgments and that our premises shall be valid.

A Christian. Why? Now some men are Christians by heredity. They are so by birth. They have grown up in the arms of the church unquestioningly and have taken the religion, as they have taken the names, of their fathers and their mothers. Far be it from me to disparage that sort of religious life, if so be it be full and free and glorious to the soul of the man who is its divinely endowed possessor. Such a man is usually quite able to declare the grounds of his belief. But there are many hereditary Christians who can give no enduring reasons for their religious acceptances—I can hardly call them convictions any more than some men can reveal in intelligent fashion the reasons for their hereditary political affiliations. Some men are Christians because it is politic so to be; others because it is commercially or politically or otherwise profitable; and still a larger host I fear are the nominal disciples of the Nazarene because it is socially commendable and wise. Some men are Christians because the Bible commands such a religious course upon those who read its precious words. Better that sort of reason and that kind of Christianity than none at all. Many other men are intellectual Christians. They yield homage to the historic Christ; of the vital and invigorating Savior who fills the souls of men to-day with blessedness and joy and beauty, power, peace, they have no conception. They know much concerning Christ, but of Him they are as ignorant as the Hottentot is of the laws of the Medes and Persians. And all these men cannot lead men of intellectual and discerning force into the very presence of the Most High as He stands revealed to us to-day in Jesus Christ until they are indwelt by Jesus and are certified in their own lives by radical evidence, rather than by superficial, of the deepest and the holiest influences that make the Christian life joyous and that commend it to the world at large.

A Christian. Why? To speak broadly we may say that all men are instinctively religious. Whatever we may have been before the dawn of history, the truth outstandingly is this, that normal men everywhere are essentially religious. Men are not equally advanced in religious information or in the several departments of religious thought. But irresistably and indubitably we are impressed with the fact that universally men are endowed with a common elemental religious capacity and susceptibility. Throughout all the world we find humanity exhibiting a religious instinct which reveals itself in the consciousness of a spiritual relationship with a higher power and in obedience to certain moral regulations that are conceived to be beneficial to society and to the individual in his human relationships, and satisfactory to the higher agency that controls the world. Everywhere men, in the outreaching of their spiritual faculties, desire the intimate knowledge of an understandable power, which we call God. They desire to know the truth concerning that God. They desire that the universal ruler of the destinies of men shall unfold to them the wisdom residing in Himself. They yearn with eagerness and with hope unspeakable for a release from the bondage and the dominion of sin—that is to say, from the control and influence of a detrimental force which, whether it be understood and expressed in the terms of objective or of subjective experience, is, none the less, real. Hand in hand with the spiritual consciousness there goes an elemental, a growing, perception of the actuality, the necessity and the value of moral law as the applied truth of a self-unfolding God; a moral law which in its fullest outworkings shall mark as tangible and real the results of the spiritual energies upon the life of man; a moral law which, in short, shall prove a panacea for individual and social ills.

We are Christians. Why? Simply because in the face of human necessity and human experience, in the face of the universal religious facts, in the face of our own religious information, we believe, and are sure we can demonstrate beyond peradventure, that in Christianity there is to be found both the deepest and the fullest and the richest spiritual life, and the highest and most efficient moral law.

We are Christians, because in the kingdom of God as unfolded to us in Jesus Christ we are assured of, and have entered into, the certainty of a sensible communion with a higher power which, as an imminent, infinite, humanly understandable, loving personality, is revealed objectively to us in the person of the Master. And this personality, whom we call God, strengthens, sustains, comforts, consoles, inspires us, and is constantly, both objectively and spiritually, revealing Himself to us.

We are Christians because in Christ and His Gospel we find the fullness of divine truth unfolded in language and revealed in convincing power in a human life. Human wisdom cannot comprehend larger principles of righteousness and loftier spiritual conceptions than are delivered to us in the messages of Jesus, nor a grander application of the sufficiency of those truths for the molding of character and the influencing of human life than is to be perceived in Christ.

We are Christians because within that faith is to be found an escape from the dominion of sin which is far more efficient and far more sure than any to be found elsewhere. Jesus is indeed the answer of the universal hope and of the world-wide need. In Him the soul of the individual, and of society, finds final release from the power of the adversary. His salvation is free; it is universal in its appeal; it is simple as to its conditions; it requires no education of the schools in order to be understood; it is potent in this life and it reaches out into eternity, granting to the sin-sick, weary, burdened hearts of men the precious promise of not only final but also lasting deliverance from the prince of the powers of darkness.

We are Christians because the faith that finds its name and its inspiration in Jesus Christ is the receptacle of the highest moral law. Within the treasury of Christian truth is to be found the last thing in the application of the principles of the eternal dominion of Jehovah to the affairs of humanity in their multifarious relationships. In all the world there is no gospel which is so far-reaching and so mandatory, so inclusive and so searching, as it concerns itself with human conduct, as is the Gospel of the Savior, when it is rightly accepted and properly understood. Emanating as it does from God and theocentric as it is in spirit, it satisfies our hearts and keeps us firm in the Christian faith. In it we recognize the handiwork of God. We find in it the final solution, the panacea for the dissolution of all human ills. Uncompromising with evil and declaring constantly for the pure, the righteous and the good, it inspires our devotion.

Greatest and best of all, we are Christians because all that we have received, all that we accept, all that makes us strong and steadfast, is, when we test it in our individual experience, found to be faultless. The Gospel whereby we are saved, the Christ who is our Redeemer, the promises which daily are mediated to us by our Lord: all these may be taken not without investigation, or upon hearsay evidence. We may try the revelations of God for ourselves. We have tried them. We are, therefore, Christians.

Appreciation.

Recently a wealthy man of society gave a dinner for fifteen friends, and the cost was sixty dollars a plate. With a few extras it cost him about $1000. On his way home he remarked to a neighbor, "Not one of the fellows appreciated it, and I am coming home mad at myself for my foolishness." A man gathered ten ragged boys together and treated them to ice cream. As they left the confectioner's, they raised their caps and gave him a "hurrah" that was heard blocks away. He went home happy. His one dollar had done more than the other's thousand.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MARCH 31 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: Easter Lesson, 1 Cor. 15: 12-21, 55-58—Golden Text, 1 Cor. 15-20—Memory Verse, 57—Commentary.

The resurrection is an historic fact; it is the inspiration of the Christian company of believers; it is ground of the Christian's hope for eternal life; it is the reason for our steadfastness, our immutability in Christian service. If it is not a fact, if it be a fraud, then are we truly of all men most miserable.

The crucifixion of Jesus was the supreme test of His disciples. His death left them downcast, overborne with grief, in a measure scattered. His resurrection was the signal for their re-congregation, the inspiration of their drooping spirits, their ground for undying hope. The crucifixion was necessary, in the scheme of God, to their individual salvation. The resurrection was necessary that their faith should be strengthened, that the church should be launched, that to-day we might have courage to fight the good fight and to finish the course that God hath prepared before us.

The resurrection is a fact. Few occurrences in history are better substantiated. There may, of course, be differences of opinion as to what was the exact content of the appearance of Jesus to His disciples after the resurrection. But however we may differ as to the form of His resurrection, on this we are all agreed, to this history attests, to this the presence of the church is evidence, that Jesus actually rose from the dead, that He appeared to His disciples, that His reappearance among them was so real as to be sensed by them. The resurrection of Jesus is a fact. Whatever may be our disputations, let us hold to that, for it is all important, it is at the centre of our religious life.

The resurrection is the inspiration of the Christian company of believers. In it we find strength. It is the source of our power as it was of the happiness of that earliest company of the followers of our Lord who, when they met Him face to face after the resurrection, could not believe that it was indeed He "for joy."

The resurrection is the ground of the Christian's hope of eternal life. Christ promised to His disciples that though He should be slain and remain in the tomb until the third day, yet would He come forth again unto them, triumphant over the grave and death. He further gave them to understand that in His victory over sin and death the certainty of their own victory over these selfsame forces was assured. His fulfillment of His promises and prophecies to them increased their confidence in Him and gave them hope for everlasting life in bliss within God through Him. "If Christ be not risen, then," as Paul says, "is our preaching vain," then is the faith and the hope of the multitudes who followed Him and in whose footsteps we tread, vanity, then are we bereft of hope. But by the grace of God the transcendant truth is that Christ is risen from the dead. And our fath is well founded.

The resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ is the reason for our steadfastness, our immutability in Christian service. Because His resurrection is a fact, attested in history and evidenced in the life of His church; because it is our inspiration and the ground of our hope of eternal life; therefore we stand fast in His service and lend our energies gladly to the accomplishment of His most glorious purposes and designs for the regeneration and sanctification of the world. The hope of a larger and nobler, a freer and fuller life hereafter is the inspiration of the best in human endeavor in this earthly pilgrimage. We strive to bring Heaven to pass here in the lives of individuals and of nations because we recognize that if we are to live within the presence of God in the future life we can do nothing better than to become accustomed to His presence here and practice the principles which control in His kingdom, in this life.

We cannot lay too much emphasis upon the importance of the resurrection. It is at the very centre of all Christian life and thought. A Christian church without a risen Christ is almost beyond our imagination. The disciples were a disheartened band of men when Jesus was crucified. They would have been utterly confounded had not Jesus risen from the dead. His resurrection was essential to the certification of His power for this life and for the life hereafter.

The resurrection is the consummation of the love of God in Christ. It is the finest flower of the Divine self-revelation. It takes hold, as does nothing else, in all our Christian knowledge and experience, upon the very heart-strings of humanity. It affords us reason for unquenchable, everlasting hopefulness. And to be made hopeful is to be inspired, it is to be supremely blessed.

Vs. 14. "Vain." Empty.

Vs. 17. "Vain." Another word in Gk. meaning "fruitless."

Vs. 55. "Sting." "The image is that of a beast with a sting; not death with a goad, driving men."

Vs. 57. "Give thy." Present participle. Marks both the daily victory here and the certainty of the conquering hereafter.

ALL MOLDAVIA NOW AFLAME

Rapine and Pillage Sweep Over the Rumanian Provinces.

An Agrarian Revolt—Peasant Burn Entire Towns—10,000 Jews Homeless—Rioters Slain.

Vienna.—Dispatches from Bucharest represent the whole peasantry of Upper Moldavia as being in revolt. The seriousness of the situation growing out of the anti-Semitic and agrarian disorders has not, according to the latest telegraphic reports, been exaggerated.

Four hundred farms in Moldavia have been devastated, 8000 fugitives have fled over the Rumanian frontier into Austria and a total of 10,000 Jews are homeless.

The number of dead and wounded cannot be given accurately, but the reports give a total of about eighty-five men killed and in the neighborhood of 150 wounded.

The Rumanian Government is still sending troops into the afflicted district. Practically the entire province of Moldavia has been involved.

The Rumanian Government has summoned all the reserves, totaling 30,000, to join the colors. Four regiments of infantry and some artillery have been sent by forced marches to the disturbed districts.

Several Senators and Deputies have left Bucharest to protect their estates in Moldavia. The rioters invaded the estate of Prince Chika and demanded an interview with him. They were told that he was in Bucharest. The roters telegraphed to him to come immediately or they would plunder his palace. He replied that he would come forthwith. His spirit distillery has already been burned. Other estates that have suffered are those of Prime Minister Cantacuzene, Baron Kapni and Minister Rosetti.

In a fight at Bacau the troops killed forty-two rioters. Berlad is besieged by 7000 peasants, who threaten to burn the town. There is actual or threatened fighting at Mithaileni and Sereth.

The Austrian Government has strengthened its forces on the frontier to prevent the outbreak from spreading into Austrian territory, and it has made a second representation to the Rumanian Government in reference to the protection of Austrian subjects in the disturbed area.

Rumanian fugitives are constantly arriving at the frontier, where it is now stated there are 5000 of them in extreme distress.

Agitators are circulating pamphlets, purporting to be signed by Queen Elizabeth (Carmen Sylva), urging the peasants to expel the farmers and spare nobody.

The latest news from Moldavia is that the peasant anti-Semitic movement is spreading. The town of Dorobei has been sacked and burned and the inhabitants have fled. In a fight at Cucuteni between the Hungarian and Rumanian inhabitants four Hungarians were killed and thirty wounded. Fourteen peasants were killed in a collision with the troops in the Belgestle district.

Fokshanu is in revolt. The village of Sulice has been destroyed. The situation in Rumania is going from bad to worse. The rioting of the peasants, hitherto directed against the Jews, is becoming general. Troops are protecting the railroads. A crowd of peasants stopped a train near Dangeni and robbed the passengers.

For some time past the three great Jewish families, Fischer, Costenai and Juster, have formed a trust for the leasing of half of the cultivable land of Moldavia. The wretched peasantry and the small farmers are now taking revenge on all Jews alike. Most of the estates of the three great families have already been sacked.

A deputation waited on the burgomaster of Bucoce to inform him that 1300 peasants desired permission to plunder the Jewish quarter. Permission was granted. Four policemen directed the Christians to mark their houses with crosses. The rioters pillaged the houses of the Jews, using brutal violence wherever they met with resistance. Prefect Vasesco is said to be the chief organizer of the pogroms.

The Government maintains that the outbreak is purely agrarian. The fact that a majority of the farmers and traders are Jews explains why Hebrews are the chief sufferers and gives the movement an anti-Semitic appearance.

EX-SENATOR BURTON FREE.

He Will Start a Newspaper—Accuses Sugar Trust of Persecution.

Ironton, Mo.—On his release from jail Joseph R. Burton, former United States Senator from Kansas, issued a long statement charging President Roosevelt and the Sugar Trust with persecuting him. He left here for his home in Abilene, Kan. He will conduct a newspaper hereafter.

Burton was found guilty of violating a Federal statute by appearing before a Government department as the paid representative of an alleged "get-rich-quick" concern of St. Louis. Burton entered the jail October 22, 1906. His release is due to good behavior. Burton's sentence also included a fine of $2500, and the statute under which he was convicted debars him from ever holding an office of trust or remuneration under the Federal Government. The fine, which has not been paid, will be held over him as a civil judgment.

BONILLA TAKES TO FLIGHT

Victory of Nicaraguans Puts End to War With Honduras.

United States and Mexico Asked to Intervene For Peace Before Another Army is Raised.

Managua, Nicaragua. — Choluteca has been captured and President Bonilla has fled. The Central American war is practically over. Nicaraguan steamships are following Bonilla.

General Santos Ramirez, Director-General of Telegraps and Telephones, made the following statement:

"Nicaraguan forces have captured Choluteca, Honduras, which was held by the Honduran and Salvadorean troops, and President Bonilla has fled by boat.

"Steamships will pursue the fugitive President.

"I believe the war is ended."

Choluteca was the strongest fortified town in Honduras, and the latter, as well as Nicaragua, had her strongest forces in the battle there. It is an old Spanish town on the Choluteca plains and has about 5000 inhabitants. Its value to Nicaragua is only as a strategic point. Choluteca was also captured by Nicaragua in 1894, when that country was at war with Honduras. At that time the victorious army followed up the capture with the taking of Tegucigalpa.

The Decisive Battle.

Managua, Nicaragua.—The allied forces of Salvador and Honduras, under personal command of President Bonilla, of Honduras, sustained another severe defeat at the hands of the Nicaraguan troops, aided by Honduras revolutionists near the town of Maraita.

The battle is said to have lasted for more than ten hours, following an attack made by the Nicaraguan forces, and resulted in the Honduran and Salvadorean troops taking to their heels. The defeated soldiers threw away their guns and ammunition in their flight. The Nicaraguan troops pursued them.

The Honduran revolutionists captured about 300 soldiers, an equal number of rifles and three small cannon, together with ammunition. About 200 of the Honduran troops deserted to the revolutionists during the battle.

It is estimated that 200 were killed and 150 wounded during the battle. The towns of Sula, San Padre, La Esperanza and Canayagua declared themselves in favor of the revolution.

Ask Our Good Offices.

Washington, D. C. — President Bonilla has fled from the battlefield, and the Central American war has practically ended, says the cable dispatches received in Washington by the Nicaraguan Minister, Mr. Corea.

Minister Corea expressed the opinion that President Bonilla would go to Salvador and again recruit his army for a second attack on Nicaragua, unless the United States and Mexico should exercise their good offices to the extent of insisting that Salvador and Gautemala maintain neutrality. If this was done, Senor Corea said, the war was ended, otherwise he was firmly convinced that it would be a question of only a short time until hostilities were again resumed. The Nicaraguan Minister will ask Secretary Root and the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Creel, to take some steps to force Salvador and Gautemala to keep their pledge of neutrality.

STUDENTS IN TRAIN WRECK.

Six Persons Killed and 17 Injured at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A special train on the Santa Fe Railroad, carrying scores of students home from an intercollegiate field meet at Claremont, collided head on with the out-bound limited train while both trains were moving at a rapid rate within the city limits.

Four persons were killed and seventeen injured, several of them probably fatally. The dead are C. G. Franklin, student at University of Southern California, and A. H. Edwards, Major C. Gall, and Fred Hodgson, students at Occidental College.

Both locomotives, one of the baggage cars on the limited, and the smoking car on the special train were demolished.

BOY OF NINE A SUICIDE.

Brightest Scholar in Selkirk Village Found Dead.

Albany, N. Y.—Howard Shutter, aged nine, and one of the brightest school children in the school at Selkirk, about ten miles from this city, committed suicide. The little fellow was found hanging from a rafter in the barn of Charles Niver, the discovery being made by the boy's father, who is employed on the Niver farm.

Howard had been playing around the neighborhood during the day and was apparently in the best of spirits. Members of his family are at a loss to account for the boy's determination to take his life.

Insane Man Kills His Wife.

Just released from an asylum for the insane in Snakeville, N. J., Andrew Lindeblad, forty-two years old, a watchmaker, of Jersey City, killed himself and his wife, forty years old, in their home. They had lived happily for a score of years. Lindeblad had a religious mania.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 31.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions; the progress of the Afro-American.—Ps. cxvi, 16-19.

According to the census of 1900, there are in round numbers 10,000,000 Afro-Americans in our country, 9,000,000 in the south, mostly the descendants of former slaves, and 1,000,000 in the north. The number of this race in our land emphasizes the great problem that presents itself in their presence here. This is especially true of the race problem in the south, which is becoming more serious as time passes by. The negro question once endangered the life of the nation, and it is still so serious a problem as to enlist the interest and assistance of all who have the welfare of the nation at heart as well as the interests of humanity and the progress of the kingdom of God. The soul of a negro in America is as well worth saving as one in Africa, and, while we should send missionaries to Africa, we are not to neglect the Afro-Americans. The American nation is in debt to the negroes of our land. They came here not of their own accord, but were forcibly brought and for over two centuries lived as bondsmen and slaves. But God "has loosed their bonds." He has set them free. But freedom was not their only need. It was the first step in real progress, but it is not the last, and in this work Christian missions must bear an important part.

That there is need of progress among the freedmen is not to be wondered at. The descendants of Africans, held for over 200 years in slavery, could not be expected to have attained to high standards along any lines. We are not, therefore, surprised that at the close of the war they were in a most pitiable condition and needed a helping hand if they were to be a blessing rather than a curse to our land. The negro character is a strange mixture. It is mild, yet often ferocious; innocent and again most vicious; strong in natural religious tendencies, yet largely devoid of the great essential of true religion, stability of moral character. In addition, the average negro is shiftless, lazy and improvident. The negro is very literal in "not caring for the morrow." These are the things that placed a great problem before church and state when 3,000,000 such people by the stroke of a pen passed from slavery to freedom. They were more like children than full grown men and women and needed careful training, and this is still more so today, since the 3,000,000 in the southland have increased to 9,000,000.

But the God who loosed the bonds of the freedmen has blessed them. They have made and are making progress. And in this work of development the church of Christ has taken and still must take a prominent part. They are the greatest in numbers of our exceptional populations, next to the foreigners in our land, and they must be led to higher ground along all important lines.

The needs of the negro indicate the lines along which he has progressed and should continue to do so. The three most important of these are industrial, intellectual and religious. And in all three they have made progress. (1) The negro is progressing industrially. This is the special feature of the work of Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee. But years before our mission schools were doing the same kind of work. Negro boys were being taught all kinds of trades and negro girls the domestic arts. The results are most satisfactory, and still greater fruits will be reaped in the future. (2) The negro is progressing intellectually. The work of education is being rapidly pushed. The purpose of an education is also being better understood. It used to be supposed that all educated negroes should be ministers or politicians, but today the educated negro is not above manual labor, is entering all the professions, and, above all, many are giving their service for small remuneration for the education and betterment of their own race. Girls graduating in our mission schools go back to their homes and teach the children of their own race, many of them at great personal sacrifice. (3) The negro is progressing religiously. Character is the essential need of this people. The development of head and hand is not enough. The heart also must be reached. The negro's religion consisted formerly largely in emotion. Morality had practically no place in it. But under the influence of a better class of missionaries and ministers the negro is coming to understand that character is an important part of religion.

But, while progress has been made, there is still a great work to be done, and as Christian and American citizens we should be intensely interested in this work. No race or sectional prejudice should interfere with interest in this problem. It is a gigantic one, but "with God all things are possible." Let us therefore do all in our power to make this people free indeed and worthy of their freedom.

We keep the best known makes of shoes in this country the famous Selz shoes, American Gentleman, Proper and other well known makes.

Great bargains in this department also in Ladies and Childrens shoes of which we have a big line. We handle the C and E shoe for Ladies and children. Guaranteed solid leather.

CLOTHING.

In Gent's clothing no one in this town can equal us as we always keep an up to date line at prices lower than the lowest.

Owing to the lack of space to itemize all of the specialties we have to offer we request that you visit us and be convinced that we have to offer full lines of Furniture, Carpets, Oil Cloth and Mattings, Rubber goods, ready to wear styles of garments. Trunks and suit cases, Hardware, Groceries, Gents Furnishings, Hats etc.
